MR. DUFFY WILL CONTEST.

Dr. Sargent By no Means Secure in His Seat.

Mr. John C. Duffy, the Democratic candidate for Representative from Christian county, will contest the election of Dr. Andrew Sargent, his Republican opponent, whose majority is 456. The grounds of contest will be that the election officers were not divided as required by law in many precincts, and frauds of various kinds in the election. In two heavy Republican precincts assistant clerks were provided who were not sworn. In one Crofton precinct 130 ballots voted on colored sample ballots were counted for Sargent. A strong case will be made out.

Three Colored Officers.

The colored wing of the Republicans got three official positions in the distribution of pie last night, viz: E. W. Glass, councilman in Hopkinsville. Jas. L. Allenworth, coronor of the county. Geo. W. Knight, constable in North Hopkinsville district.

Fire-Works Postponed.

On account of rain Mr. John Due has determined to postpone his grand display of Centennial fire-works until Thursday night November 11. The display will equal that at Nashville for variety, local interest and splendor.

Will Toast the Judge.

Circuit court convenes in Murray Monday morning with a big docket, including several murder cases. It being Judge Breshitt's last court, he will be tendered a supper Tuesday evening by his many friends, both Democratic and Republican—Fadoosh Visitor.

BRONCHO'S REWARD.

Franks Takes the Place of Vandell as Collector.

Washington, Nov. 6.—Yandell's resignation as Internal Revenue Collector of the Second District was placed to the President's hands by Senator Deboe this morning, and it has been accepted.

Senator Deboe, Dr. Hunter and E. T. Franks, Yandell's present Chief Deputy Collector, called at the White House, and when they emerged from the President's room Franks' face wore a pleasing smile.

It was due to the ready acceptance of Yandell's resignation by the President and his agreement to Franks' appointment.

Senator Deboe does not know whether Yandell will be willing or not to serve as Franks' deputy, but says that he may have it if he wants it.

DEATHS.

FAXON.—Miss Ollie Faxon, daughter of Mr. Edward Faxon, died last Thursday night at her home on Durst street. She was 14 years old and leaves a large circle of friends to mourn her loss. Death was due to typhoid fever. The internment took place in Hopewell cemetery Friday.

LOCKHART.—D. D. Lockhart died at the asylum last Wednesday night of uremia, aged 65 years. The remains were sent to Wickliffe, Ky., for interment. He had been an inmate of the institution for many years.

TUCKER.—Miss Add Tucker, an asylum patient, died last Thursday night of softening of the brain, aged 49 years. The remains were shipped to Oakland, Ky., her old home, for interment.

KNOX.—Walter, the 18 months-old son of Mr. Jas. Knox, who resides a few miles north of the city, died last Thursday night. The burial took place in the family burying ground Friday afternoon.

At The Opera House To-night.

"The Heart of Chicago," which was successfully launched at the Lincoln Theatre in Chicago to the largest house in the history of that theatre, will be the next attraction at Holland's Opera House. It is said to be one of the best sensational melodramas produced in years and to contain some absolutely startling mechanical effects.

The Chicago newspapers pronounce the new railroad effect to be an absolute novelty and claim for it superiority over anything of the kind ever attempted. The Chicago fire scene also came in for unlimited praise. Other important works of the scenic painter and stage mechanic's art are the night illumination in the Court of Honor at the World's Fair Grounds; Mason's Temple Roof Garden at night and a Panoramic View of the South Side Business District and Lake Michigan. The interpreting company is said to be very strong. It will appear here this evening.

Funerals.

Pon. Ky., Nov. 6.—The Circle meeting at New Barren Springs last Saturday was a success so far as dinner was concerned. They had lots of fine eatables on the ground for all. The crowd was large and the speeches were good. The big meeting is going on now, conducted by Hens. Alex. McCord and B. F. Hyde.

Messrs. Bob Hunter and James T. Wilson, of Haley's Mill, spent last Sunday evening and night with J. J. Barnes.

Aunt Agnes Barnes is not so well this week from the effects of a cancer.

The protracted meeting at White Plains commenced last Saturday night and is still going on. Bro. Pope, of the Universalist persuasion, is conducting the preaching.

Miss Viona Long is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Mildred Hord, this week.

A MILLIONAIRE'S BODY.

Will Be Brought To Hopkinsville For Interment.

San Francisco, Cal. Nov. 5.—G. D. McLean, the millionaire of Grass Valley, Cal., died at the Lick house late last night after a lingering illness. He was attended by his nephew, William Blakey, of Evansville, Ind., who will take the remains East for interment. Mr. McLean was interested in many mining enterprises and with Stephen W. Dorsey owned the famous Maryland mine, noted as very valuable property.

To the above special the Evansville Courier of Saturday made the following reference:

"Captain William Blakey, the well-known lawyer, was called to San Francisco three weeks ago by the serious illness of Mr. McLean. The latter's death was not unexpected. The remains will arrive here Tuesday from California and be taken to Hopkinsville Ky., where the internment will occur. Mr. McLean had but one sister, the mother of Captain Blakey, of this city. He was a Kentuckian by birth and went West about forty-six years ago. He sailed across the ocean and with a friend engaged in the mining business. His investments in both gold and silver mines were profitable and he accumulated a fortune at his death, being several times a millionaire."

According to this, the body of Mr. McLean will arrive in this city this afternoon for interment.

REPUBLICANS HAVE IT

But There's Talk of Defeating Hanna Up in Ohio.

Columbus, O., Nov. 6.—The contest for control of the Ohio Legislature is considered ended today. The official counting in some counties will continue next week, but there has been such close watching that material changes are expected. The indications are that the senate will stand 10 Democrats and 17 Republicans, and the House 51 Democrats and 58 Republicans, with a majority of five Republicans on joint ballot. There may be several contested seats, but these cannot be considered until the Legislature meets, the first Monday in January next. Since it seems to be settled that the Republicans have a small majority on joint ballot, the rumors are revived about a combine of certain Republican members with the seventy Democratic members for the election of a new speaker than Senator Hanna on the joint ballot.

Notes From Howell.

Howell, Ky., Nov. 8.—We are now enjoying a very nice rain, and it was very much needed in this portion of the county.

Mr. Pete F. Fox, of this place, has accepted a position with John C. Lewis of Louisville. Mr. Fox will be missed very much in the city circles, as he was one of the leading beaux of this place.

Mr. W. E. Embury, a prominent farmer of this place, has sold his farm to Mr. Alcorn, who is attending to the going to Florida to live. His friends are sorry to lose him, but hope he will be successful wherever he may go.

Miss Mattie May Ralford, the belle of this place, who is attending B. F. College, Hopkinsville, Ky., came home Friday, Oct. 29, bringing with her quite a number of her schoolmates.

The young people of Garrettsburg and Howell vicinity spent a very pleasant day on Johnson's Creek, chestnut hunting Saturday. Among the number who attended were the following: Misses Mattie May Ralford, Bertha King, Ida Fuqua, Annie Page, Bessie Leavelle, Emma Stemburg, May Embury, Elizabeth Mearns, Sallie May Giles, Jessie Embury and Thelma Lowry. Messrs J. B. Embury, Claude King, H. C. Embury, Otho M. Wilson, Hugh Maynor and E. B. Embury, Chaperoned by Mesdames M. E. Bacon and D. C. Keatts.

Misses Page and Mason showed a great deal of skill on horse back riding with a young man behind to hold the reins.

We hope that the next time Miss Fuqua makes us a visit she will be fortunate enough to keep her beau awake, not that she was lacking in conversation but he was so sleepy.

State of Kentucky, Executive Department, Frankfort.—The 25th day of November next is hereby set apart and designated as a day for thanksgiving and prayer throughout the Commonwealth, and the people are requested to abstain from labor and in every way observe the day as one on which grateful thanks should be rendered unto the Most High.

In testimony of which the seal of the Commonwealth is affixed in this the capital of the State, on the 4th day of November, 1897, and the 100th year of the Commonwealth. By the Governor.

BE PATIENT.

Oh heart of mine, be patient—
Some kind day,
With all life's passing problems
Solved for aye.
With all its storms and doubtings
Cleared away.
With all its little disappointments past—
I shall be able to understand at last.
Be patient, some sweet day
The nation's eyes
The tears and trials, and the Hidden snare
The grief that comes upon the Unaware.
Shall, with the fleeting years he held aside,
And then shall then be fully satisfied.
Be patient, keep thy life-work
Well in hand,
Be thankful where thou canst not Understand.
Thy lot, whatever it be, is Wisely planned.
Whether thy life's story, God holds the key;
Thou wilt cannot twist him, and hide palely.

THE BOY WITH A LASSO.

BY EDWARD WILLETTE.

"Seems to me that those fellows do not think I amount to much," muttered Sam Roden, as he walked away from a knot of Mr. Robey's pupils who had shut him out of their sports. Sam was not much mistaken in his guess. He had just entered the school, and he had come from far-off Texas, and his life had been passed on a cattle farm, where he had had few opportunities for study, and of those few he had availed himself but poorly. He was "low down" in Mr. Robey's school, and the boys voted him heavy and stupid, and named him "Texas."

"Very well," said Sam. "I may teach them a thing or two yet. I will stick to those studies, and if there is anything in them, I mean to dig it out, or go home and 'lend cattle.'"

The next day of the first Saturday of the term, and the boys had planned a grand excursion into the woods.

Early in the morning they set out, loaded with provisions, fishing tackle, and all appliances for a big holiday, with the exception of guns, which were not allowed.

Sam Roden carried nothing but a long and strong rope, which he had been greasing and working over for two days, and in the end of which he had skillfully knotted a snipnose.

"What are you going to do with that, Texas?" asked Ben Travis.

"Just taking it along to play with," Sam replied. "It sort of reminds me of home, and I don't want to forget my old tricks while I am learning new ones."

After walking through the woods, they came to Swift creek, a narrow, deep and rapid stream. It was too wide for jumping across, and the water was too cold for swimming.

As they wanted to get on the other side, and had brought an ax, it occurred to them that they might cut down a tree, so that it would fall across the creek and form a bridge.

So they set at work, but a poor job they made of it, trying themselves out with hacking that was nothing like chopping. Then Sam Roden interfered.

"Excuse me, fellows," said he, "but I think you had better let me do that, as it's in my line. If you will look up that tree, you will see that it would never fall across the stream. Let's find another."

He found a tree that suited him, and in a few minutes he cut it down, bulging the top on the other side of the creek, and leaving a clean and level stump. Then he trimmed away the branches on the upper side of the fallen tree, completing the bridge.

The boys all crossed over, and walked along the course of the creek until they came to Bestor's pond, where the water spread out like a little lake, a short distance above the fall, and seemed to have no current to speak of.

Here they found a skiff, which they borrowed without permission of the owner, and five of the oldest boys, as many as it would hold, got in, and paddled about the pond.

But they went too far down, and the current was swifter than they thought, and soon it was drawing them rapidly toward the falls.

Then they tried to row against it, but they were poor oarsmen, and an oar broke, and they were hurried downward, crying in vain for help.

Not quite in vain! Sam Roden had run down to the water's edge, holding his rope in a coil in his right hand.

"Hi, there!" he shouted, "catch this!"

With a free swing of his arm, he flung the rope, and it flew out over the pond in circles and curves.

"Take a turn!" directed Sam.

And he called to the boys who remained on shore to come to his assistance.

They pulled the boat to the bank, where its living freight was unloaded, and nobody cared to venture in it again.

"Well, Texas, you do amount to something, after all," said Ben Travis, who had been the leader of the boys in the boat. "If it hadn't been for that rope of yours, we would have been in a pickle."

"I know how to use a lasso."

learned that much in Texas," quietly remarked Sam Roden.

The boys retraced their steps, crossed the creek again, and made their way to an old field, which was surrounded by a high fence. They had noticed it as they came down, and had pronounced it a capital place for a game of ball.

They climbed the fence and soon settled down to the game.

It happened that there were just enough of them for the two sides, without Sam Roden. So Sam was left out, and he sauntered through a piece of woods that occupied one corner of the lot, and played with his lasso.

But the boys had hardly got heated up in their game, when they heard a mowing sort of roar that was enough to frighten the biggest and boldest of them.

A bull, which had been the sole tenant of the old field, heard their shouts, and came down by the path of woods to investigate the invaders.

The sight of one of the boys red shirts made him furious, and he rushed for the ball party, with his head down and his eyes gleaming.

They scattered and ran, but the fence was in the way, and the bull was close behind them, and it seemed to be a sure thing that some of them must suffer.

But Sam Roden had watched the charge of the infuriated beast, and he was standing at a corner of the timber, with his coiled lasso in his right hand.

As the bull came within range, he let it fly.

Without stopping to watch the effect of the throw, he hastened to take a couple of turns with the end of the line around a stout sapling.

The lasso, thrown as he had often thrown it on the cattle farm, settled over the animal's horns, and Sam and the sapling brought him to a sudden stop.

He roared and plunged madly, and then fell over on his side.

Sam made his line fast, and the boys perceived that they were safe. They found the owner of the bull, who recovered the lasso for Sam, and they went home without meeting any more adventures.

Compliments were showered upon Sam Roden, to which he listened silently, doing a little thinking on his own account.

"We can't all be good at the same thing, fellows," was the only comment he made upon the day's proceedings.

After that the boys of Mr. Robey's school showed respect to Sam Roden, and were glad to associate with him.

They helped him with his studies, and his progress was as rapid as his best friends could have desired.—Golden Days.

WANTED THE COUPON.

Lady Who Had Purchased Ten Cents Worth of Postage Stamps.

Many of Manchester's merchants are giving trading coupons to the amount of ten cents or more, which possess a value when one has acquired a certain number. The merchant, of course, has to pay for the coupons, and they are given out as a matter of advertising. A most amusing incident occurred Saturday evening in a store on Elm street, not a thousand miles from the Weston & Fitts block.

A lady walked into the store and asked for five 3-cent stamps. It took all there was in the store, but the proprietor wished to please the lady. She took the stamps, thanked him and waited.

"Is there something else, madam?" queried the proprietor.

"Oh, no," replied the lady, "that is, nothing that I wish to buy." And still she waited.

"You gave me the correct change for five stamps, didn't you, madam?" asked the proprietor, noticing she still lingered.

"Yes, sir," replied the lady.

"And you are sure there's nothing else you wanted?"

"Well, I noticed that you gave trading coupons here, and, as I have bought ten cents' worth of stamps, I am waiting for a coupon."

The proprietor is slowly recovering.—Manchester Union.

The Landlord's Mistake.

Lord Tennyson told the following story on himself, describing an incident of his journeying in Scotland in 1860. After he had lodged all night in an inn near Stirling, where he was not known to the host, a gentleman asked the landlord: "Do you know who had with you to-night?" "No," but he was a pleasant gentleman. "It was Tennyson," the host said. "And what may he be?" "Oh, he is a writer of verses, such as 'The Charge of the Light Brigade' and 'The Charge of the Light Brigade'." "No," to think of that! Just a public writer, and I did him my best bedroom!" Of Mrs. Tennyson, however, the landlord remarked: "Oh, but she was an angel!"

No Time for Talk.

Daisy—George and Enid don't appear to have much to say about their engagement.

Dick—No! I noticed on the piazza last night that they were very close-mouthed.—Town Topics.

The Magazine of London.

At Long Morris, in the Month of June.

Has laughter gone out? Are we never again to have the honest guffaw—the loud laugh, which as the poet says, bespeaks the vacant mind? In this really a true account of the national exhalation. If so, possibly it has gone out, at any rate in polite circles. Deceive me, we are withering, if we are cultured and refined; and to be vulgar and to be ignorant are worse offences than to be more explicitly imbecile in the De-slogans. And yet it almost seems a pity too. It is not well, say, to lose any laurel, and, happily, infectious expression of pleasure in a world no lessed as ours.

Alas! I fear there is no doubt that the power of irresistible laughter is the gift of youth, and youth only, whether in nations or in individuals.

Passing the drawing room door the other afternoon, I could hear inside after peal of silvery, girlish laughter. It was Miss Ethel who was entertaining her school friends with ten and bread and butter and jokes.

This is the time of life for laughter. I dare say the jokes would not have made me smile. But when the spring tide is blossoming, and the sap is running upward in the trees, and the vernal woods are bursting into leaf and echoing with song, and, wherever you look, all is verdure and joy, almost anything can move quick laughter.

Or there is an earlier stage, when baby is being tickled by mamma and crows with delight. Or, though this is true, is often silent, there is that most beautiful of all sights—the little blue-eyed boy or girl, with his line in his white-bush at dawn and smiles and ripples with laughter at some innocent, childish thought. It is good to hear happy laughter, it is good to watch these baby smiles.

But laughter can be not only grotesque, but very dreadful as well. To hear a maniac laugh is one of the most terrible experiences. To hear a hundred laughs, as one does in hearing the Isola dei Pezzi at Venice, is a foretaste of the lower regions.

Further on in the downward path of life, when the soul is very acid, the smile of the mind is often proclaimed by violent laughter.

The old man is back again in the scenes of boyhood, and is going over in a dream the days of long ago. I remember well, lying awake in London lodgings, though an otherwise well-to-do night, unable to sleep for the loud, incessant laughter pealing from the room above, where the old man of the brass lay dying. When it ended, just before dawn, the old life ended with it; and in the morning his body came in to be examined, and to express the hope that I had not been much disturbed. The old man, she assured me, had fainted, but had been going over his boyish days again; the old brothers, long years dead and forgotten, were with him; and they were crackling, or gathering apples or swinging, or swimming together across the old brook, all that sleepless night. One was just as was so, but the laughter had an awful sound.

The Hicks 1898 Almanac and Paper.

We are informed that the 1898 Almanac of Prof. I. R. Hicks is now ready, and judging from its past history, it will not be many weeks in finding its way into homes and offices all over America. It is much larger and finer than any previous issue. It contains 116 pages, is splendidly printed and illustrated on fine book paper, having the latest portrait of every great man of the world. It is no longer to be denied that the publications of Prof. Hicks have become a necessity to the family and commercial life of this country. Its journal, "Word and Works," aside from its storm, weather and astronomical features, has to do with the best literary, scientific and family magazines of the age. Do not believe hearsay and reports. See the Hicks Almanac and paper for yourself. You will then know why they are so popular. They are educators of the millions, and unexcelled safeguards to property and human life. It is a matter of simple record that Prof. Hicks has foretold for many years all great storms, floods, droughts and tornadoes, even the recent terrible drought over all the country. The Almanac alone is 25 cents a copy. The paper is $1.00 a year with the Almanac as a premium. Send to: World Atlas Works Press Co., 2211 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo.

Weaver was elected in Louisville by 2,638 in majority over T. E. Eg.

Every Democrat on the ticket for counties and city offices was elected by majorities ranging from 1,200 up.

One or two of the Democratic leaders are in doubt, but the Democrats swept all the rest.

The constitutional amendment changing the taxation of city property of certain classes from ad valorem to a special system, has probably passed through the legislature.

It has 23,250 for and 12,478 against; and the unopposed counts a majority defeat it, as very few persons voted on it.

DROWNING AND RESCUES.

Are Different in Real Life Than in the Novels.

In fiction it is common enough to read of the hero of a story plunging in gallantly to the rescue of a drowning heroine, and bearing her with "powerful strokes" to shore. These descriptions seem to have suggested themselves to writers from observation of a dog retrieving a piece of wood thrown into the water; but in actual practice they do not exist.

Good swimmers who have made a study and practice of imaginary rescue in the water will find it very difficult to do for even a rude swimmer to retrieve and bring to bank another nude comrade who is quite competent—acting the part of a drowning man, and not hysterical nor half insensible. Such a performer does not clutch nor impede his rescuer, and yet this sort of artificial rescue made easy opens the eyes of those who essay it to the weight, the difficulty of free striking out, and the slowness of progress which occur to the rescuer.

When, in lieu of a make-believe rescue, the real operation has to be performed, it becomes far more arduous even if attempted and conducted scientifically, still more so if the rescuer, inexperienced, advances to join hands with the friend in trouble, like partners in a dance. The semi-conscious state of the drowning person destroys all presence of mind on the part of the latter, even if the comrade ever existed in him, and he instinctively clutches at anything which he feels, and which seems to offer support. The correct approach to a drowning person is from behind, and very guardedly, to avoid a clutch.

Once arrived astern, a very light support, given at arm's length and while treading water, under the ears or the nape of the neck, will suffice to keep the object's head above water. If, while thus supported, the rescued party is not too far gone to recover respiration, the rescuer may present to his burden backward to safety.

With a woman, if her hair is real and can be drawn out, as a tow rope, the task is rather easier, and progress may soon commence. If it is a man who is being saved, and he cannot recover his breath, and gain presence of mind to keep still while he is saved, the work is much harder, because as soon as the rescuer begins to move shoreward, there is a chance of his legs trailing to touch those of his burden, and the latter, if he can clutch them with hand or leg, obtains a fulcrum and purchase from which he may wiggle around and clutch and sink his preserver and himself also.

We have known a cool-headed rescuer, on the length of ducking the head of a persistently struggling object of rescue until he produced temporary loss of senses, this being the safest operation for both parties, after due examination of the position. A real insensible body is the easiest of all to bring to bank.

FACTS ABOUT DIVORCES.

Government Collects Some Interesting Statistics on the Subject.

The United States government has collected statistics showing the duration of marriage before divorce, the figures covering a period of 20 years.

In the last 30 years 500,000 divorces have been granted in the United States. The figures for the last ten years have not yet been published, but for the 10 years from 1867 to 1886 statistics show that the divorce high-water mark belongs to those who have been married four years.

Beginning with the one-year married people, the total is, roughly, 15,000. For the four years preceding the total is nearly double—27,000.

It grows much smaller, but until the figures for those who have been married nine years are reached, the one-year figure is not touched. The total decreases steadily until the 20-year married number 4,000. Those who have been married 21 years and over reach the enormous total of 25,000. Evidently compatibility need not increase as the years fly by.

In this class, however, a reversal of "endurance" figures is shown, for the average duration of married life for the husband is 37.47, while for the wives it is only 26.70.

While, divorce aside, the average duration of married life is from 22 to 29 years, the average duration of married life to the divorced is only 9.17 years, being 9.27 for the wife and 8.97 for the husband. This difference between husband and wife suggests that the weaker sex really is the longer in bearing the woes of the married.

Source of the Gulf Stream.

Recent investigations by Dr. Lindholm, who has also made the principal source of the Gulf stream is not the Florida channel, but the region between and beside the islands of the West Indies. At Bimini the volume of this warm water is 60 times as great as the combined volume of all the rivers in the world at their mouths.

What the Well-Groomed Girl of Greater New York Wears.

Idea for Cheap Gowns—Suggesting and Practical Hint Regarding the Reproduction of French Costumes.

The dressmaker was in. Would she see me? In one minute, after she had disposed of her troublesome customer, My errand? I had a number of pictures of French gowns, and I wished to learn from her how they could be made up inexpensively for the American girl.

The first picture showed a gown of mixed silk material, in blue and gray.

A CHILD'S CLOAK.

trimmed with founces of blue silk and sable fur. It was one of the prettiest in the entire importation, but, of course, far beyond the means of the average person.

She examined the picture. "That," she said, "might be made up in vicuña cloth of a brown and white mixture. The founces about the bottom should be of brown satin, and sleeves and hip pieces be trimmed with the same. These brown ruffles might all be faced with cream white satin, and a jabot of cream white lace should finish the sides of the bodice."

"By the way, I have here a delightful gown that could be inexpensively made up, and yet has a charming air."

"As you see, the material in this gown is brown basket cheviot. The skirt is gored, and plain save for three milliner's folds of the dress material about the bottom, with an inch space between. These folds give it a tailor-made air that is very attractive. The waist is of the plain, stretched pattern; that is, with no seams save those under the arms. Two straps of the material are stitched down the front and two down the back, those in front being finished with groups of plain brown buttons. The sleeves are leg-o'-mutton, is worn with a plain standing collar, and consists of the finest of brown of plain satin or plaid silk. The latter is preferred.

Four-in-fives are also worn, but the gown they accept of should be one of the new tailor models, opening at the neck in small revers, just enough to reveal the tie.

Lawn ties, with big bow and ends under the chin, are worn with more elaborate dresses; they should never accompany the Alpine hat. And as that is the favorite headgear of the well-groomed girl, they are not often seen upon the avenues of New York.

Although children's styles have followed the example of sleeves set by mother's gowns, with across the shoulder, it is still essential for the little tot, fluffiness and beauty still hold supreme, to make the little dress appear, if possible, even prettier than they are.

A little tot from London is bewitching in her coat, although it is very simple and comfortable. The undergarment is of a fancy cream serge, and is made to fit smoothly about the shoulders with a short empire waist. From there, however, it hangs with plenty of fullness.

Over this garment is worn a long cape, entirely concealing the arms, of white lamb's wool cloth. It is quite plain, save for a deep, turn-over collar. Baby also wears a white Tam-o'-Shanter, trimmed with awn's down, white ties, and rosettes of ribbon.

—A WORK OF ART.

The Picture That the Young Lady Failed to Sell.

"I am selling works of art," she said shyly. But she wasn't the least bit shy, just the same, for she brushed past the half-open door by which I mean that I was attired in my shirt sleeves—yes, I had the rest of the shirt on, don't try to be funny—and was manifesting (tobacco) and aid into a chair in the parlor before I could explain in horror that my wife was away from home, and that there was no one to defend me but the servant girl. I called upon my reserve force of nerve and resolved to face the situation resolutely.

"Art thou?" I responded. She did not notice the gist of my remark.

"How do you like this water color?" she asked, producing a picture of a fellow and a girl seated on a log embracing each other.

"You don't call that the color of water, do you?" I asked, earnestly. She looked at me to see whether I was crazy or a fool (as most everyone does), concluded that I was the latter (as most everyone does), and went on to explain.

"Oh, no; I mean that it is a picture that is painted with colors that are mixed with water."

"Like the English when they take brandy."

"I suppose so—how do you like the picture?"

"Very much," I answered. "I suppose they are just married?"

"No, I rather think that—"

"Ah, this is love's young dream."

"Yes, she is probably telling his love," she said, with a pretty blush that was very pretty.

"Do you think she will accept him?"

"Yes, I do," she answered, emphatically.

"I suppose, then, he has money?"

"Probably," she said doubtfully.

"How much?" I asked.

"I will sell you this picture for five dollars. That is just half the regular price I get for them."

"I don't mean that," said I. "What I want to know is, how much money the young man in the picture is worth?"

She stared at me blankly. Then she remembered that I was a fool.

"Oh, that's it. Well, he's worth $10,000."

"All right, said I. "I'll take the picture." No doubt that decision of mine confirmed her in the opinion that I was a fool.

"Well," said she, after a pause. "Well?" I echoed.

"Where's my five dollars? Here's your picture."

"Oh," I answered, "that's what you want. Why, just take the five dollars out of the $10,000 that belongs to him and hand me the balance."

"Then she saw that I was not a fool—and left hurriedly.—Yellow Book.

Steel Barbs.

The latest idea about water transportation is the construction of steel barbs. It is said that a steel barbed draw but 15 inches of water where a wooden large draw five feet. If this be true, it means a revolution in water transportation. The belief in the scheme is so strong in St. Louis that a shipyard is to be established there for the building of steel barges for use on the Mississippi.—Kansas City Star.

Some Plain Facts.

Grave errors, injustice, wrongs of greater or less degree, arise from lack of knowledge of the truth, and more frequently from deception.

The most infamous case on record of deception and injustice is the attempt to demonetize silver as a money of final redemption in the United States.

There is no learned judge, skilled lawyer, or court of justice that is capable of reconciling the effort with the constitutional laws that govern the issue of money in this country.

The people have been deceived, officials in power, chosen to administer justice under the laws, have ignored their sworn duty, and given aid to the scheme that has paralyzed industry, reduced property values one-half, and beggared millions.

There is no authority of law, either specific or by inference, by which gold alone is made the only money with which to discharge debts, either public or private. The effort to make it so is unconstitutional and a national calamity.

Plain and ample information, facts, and truth, concerning this almost successful scheme to corner the wealth of the people, is now being printed in the Cincinnati Enquirer, a newspaper which the combined power of money has failed to muzzle or buy.

The Weekly Enquirer is only 75c a year. The address is Enquirer Company, Cincinnati, O.

TO THE BIG FOUR.

There are four Democrats on the new City Council, constituting a majority of that body. Upon these men devolves the responsibility of giving Hopkinsville a Democratic administration. They were elected as Democratic nominees in a straight party fight and the people expect them to do their duty as Democrats. A part of their duty is to see that no man who was not true to his party is given any position in the city government. There are Democrats willing to fill these places and no man who does not stand with both feet upon the party platform has a right to expect any reward from those who won the hard fought battle for supremacy last week. Five or six of the present city officials voted and worked against the Democratic nominees in an unholy alliance with Republicans, white and black. The heads of these men should be chopped off without mercy or delay. Some of them also voted against the party ticket last year and took part in organizations intended to overturn Democratic principles. Let no mistakes be made this time. See that every man from the highest to the lowest officer is a Democrat who believes in his party and its platform as a matter of principle. There is work to be done to keep Hopkinsville in Democratic hands and no man who is not known to be true all along the line should be trusted in office.

The editor of the Kentuckian is not a candidate for any office within the gift of the Council, but as a private citizen and a member of the Democratic organization of this State, we claim the right to ask that only Democrats who love their party be placed in office. Let a Democratic caucus be held and nominations made for every office from pound-keeper to Mayor.

Now that the election is over we have a word of friendly advice for the Independent. For the honor and decency of the Hopkinsville press, we are glad to see that Mr. Metcalf has cleansed his columns of the billingsgate and abuse of the anonymous liar and assassin of private character who was given free rein during the campaign to abuse and vilify the Democratic candidates and their supporters. The people have spoken upon the issues raised by the Independent and Mr. Metcalf should let this, his first experience in the dirty work of politics, be his last, and strive in future to elevate local journalism instead of lowering its standard to the level of the contemptible and cowardly creature who did its mud-slinging under its recent contract.

We say this in a kindly spirit. The Independent's lying and scurrilous assaults upon good citizens were a disgrace to decent journalism. The identity of the writer has not been disclosed, but his lack of gentlemanly instincts was apparent in all he wrote. There is no place in Hopkinsville journalism for such cattle. Do your own editorial work hereafter, Mr. Metcalf, and if your paper cannot be loyal and truthful, let it at least be decent.

The City Council passed an ordinance Friday night requiring all bicycles to be provided with bells. We seriously doubt the wisdom of this action. Chicago has repealed just such a law, on the ground that the wheelman does not exercise proper care when he has a bell. He simply rings his bell and speeds ahead, upon the idea that ringing has given him the right-of-way. There are four hundred bicycles in Hopkinsville and the incessant jingling of bells may confuse both riders and pedestrians and do more harm than good. This was the experience of Chicago where the law was tried. The rider without a bell is more apt to be careful and on the lookout to avoid collisions and accidents. But a trial of the ordinance will show whether the law is a good one or not.

The Democrats have a clear majority of two-thirds in both branches of the Legislature and the Governor's veto will be no obstacle to the way of some much needed legislation.

The election returns for Christian county show that Mr. Forbes, who leads the Democratic ticket, received only 176 votes short of the Bryan vote last year, while Canaler, his opponent, is 1,190 votes behind McKelvey's vote. The average Democratic vote was 100 short and the average Republican vote 100 short. The Democrats have reason to be proud of their day's work, but what a pity it is that the other 400 didn't turn out and save Forbes from defeat.

Mr. Geo. E. Gary, Chairman of the Democratic Campaign Committee, deserves a great deal of credit for cutting down the Republican majority a thousand votes in Christian county. He was untiring in his work of organization, intelligent and far-seeing in planning and skillful and energetic in executing. The campaign was the hardest fought one the Republicans have had in recent years and but for their lavish use of money the whole outfit would have been badly beaten.

Jas. T. Coleman, the brainy young lawyer who was elected County Attorney of Caldwell, has reason to be proud of his splendid race. He was elected by 268 majority over his Republican opponent. The Democrats made no mistake in putting him on their ticket.

Turner Lockett, a staunch young Democrat who remained true to the party in spite of the influence of his older relatives, has respected the reward if his loyalty. He was elected city attorney of Henderson Tuesday by a 100-0 vote.

The roster will once more come first on the official ballots, the victorious party being entitled to that position.

Respectfully, Yours to Please,

Sam Frankel,

At the Same Old Stand, = = = No. 15 MAIN STREET.

An attempt was made to assassinate President Mraes, of Brazil, Saturday. The president's brother was probably mortally wounded and Gen. Bethencourt, minister of war, was killed. There were two assassins, one armed with a dagger and the other with a pistol. The man with the dagger was captured, but the other escaped without being seen.

Four adjoining counties in this section elect young lady school superintendents, as follows: Christian, Miss Katie McDaniel; Caldwell, Miss Nanie Catlett; Crittenden, Miss Mina Wheeler; Hopkins, Miss Sallie Brown. Perhaps twenty ladies are elected in the State to fill these positions.

The Fusion ticket in Hancock went through except county judge, clerk and jailer, which offices went to the Republicans. Bailey got 330, Shackelford 512, Parker 35, Hindman 25 and Wallace 6. J. L. Brown, Democrat-Populist, was elected representative by 4 votes.

Some radical changes are needed in the election boards. The coming legislature should by all means give a more general scope to the registration law and there should by all means be a poll tax clause added, requiring all voters to pay their poll taxes before they can vote. This would in a measure register and locate all voters and at the same time add many thousands of dollars to the State revenues. The device should also be taken off the ballots and the ballots reduced in size and otherwise simplified. A pictorial ballot is a reflection upon the intelligence of any man who has sense enough to vote upon public questions. Let safeguards be thrown around the exercise of suffrage, the voting itself made easier and then let public officers be compelled to observe the law by appointing officers from lists supplied by county committees. The powers of election inspectors should be further extended, so as to allow each party to appoint an inspector to watch the final count by the county canvassing boards. It is to be hoped that Senator Crenshaw will devote special attention to the passage of amendments embodying these needed additions to the provisions of the State election law.

In the next legislature there will be six preachers, five doctors and five editors.

His Last Vote.

Uncle Jimmie Lindsay, of the Allegre precinct, who is no doubt the oldest man in Todd Co., having been born 1805, cast his last vote Tuesday which was in favor of the Democratic ticket. He was carried to the polls by Ben Bartlett, and upon being assisted from the buggy, he made to quote a number of enthusiastic friends a short talk in which he said he cast his first vote for Andrew Jackson when he made his first race for the presidency and had ever supported Jacksonian Democracy. He completed his remarks by a few pathetic sentences in which he said he was about to exercise the right of suffrage for the last time.—Fem broke Review.

American Beauty.

Women of America have a type of beauty peculiar to themselves. The climate, habits, and social peculiarities, have combined to produce a type of womanhood quite distinct from the women of other countries. It has become almost an every day occurrence for the beauty and youth and blood of Europe to cross the water in search of an American beauty, for the United States has become famous throughout the world. The American beauty is a peculiar product of this country. She has, however, one formidable enemy, not only to her beauty, but to her health as well. That enemy is indigestion to the climate and soil of the United States. It is called Catarrh. Almost every woman has it in mild or severe form. Our climate makes it very nigh unavoidable. It is the only natural remedy the American woman has. Not only is the United States the home of catarrh, but it also is the home of the now world-famous catarrh remedy, Pe-ru-na. The medical profession has at last succeeded in devising a remedy for the well-nigh universal disease.

Dr. Hartman, the original compounder of Pe-ru-na, has a recent book on chronic catarrh which he will send free to any address for a short time. Address The Pe-ru-na Drug Mfg. Co., Columbus, O.

BLADDER TROUBLES.

The bladder was created for one purpose, namely, a receptacle for the urine, and as such it is not liable to any form of disease except by one or two ways. The first way is from imperfect action of the kidneys. The second way is from careless local treatment of other diseases.

Unhealthy urine from unhealthy kidneys is the chief cause of bladder troubles. It is comforting to know that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root (full) is every wish in quickly curing bladder and urinary troubles. It corrects frequent calls, inability to hold urine and sending or stinging pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. All druggists fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet, both sent free by mail. Richards & Co. are having a big special sale and their stores are enjoying a genuine fall rush. Read in another column the particulars of the great bargain they are offering.

Again Our Bargains Burst Forth
BLAZEN WITH CONSTELLATION OF Shining Low Prices Far and Wide!

They illuminate the horizon and bid the weary pocket book to pick up hope at the under values. A Few Cents May Capture.

The great sale we inaugurated on last Saturday, Nov. 6, was the busiest day we have had in 18 months. The nine remaining days of this money saving sale we intend to make even greater and larger, by offering to the trade unprecedented low prices even in the face of the advanced and advancing markets. Goods of all kinds have advanced from 5 to 25 per cent., but despite this the prices we quote you now are even lower than any offered by any merchant during the depressed conditions for the past three seasons. In a circular issued a few days ago we stated our reasons plainly for this; but for the benefit of those of you who may have failed to receive our first circular, we again state as a reason for this sale and for the extraordinary low prices at which we offer you this stock. We bought too largely; our stock is larger by two than any other of similar character in Hopkinsville. The extreme hot weather of October leaves us with only 60 days in which to reduce it to its proper size by January 1st. Not of choice therefore, but business prudence has prompted this sale. To make it accomplish the end desired, we know full well inducements must be offered. Other merchants have not in addition therefore to the low prices named you in a former circular.

WE QUOTE FOR THIS WEEK:
